A complete guide to remote speech-to-text reporting

Ensuring every deaf person gets the best communication services in the right place, at the right time, throughout life.

How it works:

The reporter will type every word that is spoken in a meeting or conference and the text will appear on your chosen screen, streamed over the internet. This could be anything from a laptop to a mobile and can even be projected onto a big screen for more than one participant.

To access this service all you need is an internet connection and a microphone. Once your booking has finished the transcript is yours and will be available immediately. The minimum booking is one hour.

A site visit is the place to start, at no cost we come and advise on the correct set-up, equipment and requirements to make sure the service is the best it can possibly be.

A fast service underpinned by quality

Clarion UK's Online Remote Speech to Text Service helps overcome language barriers quickly and affordably by bringing a fully qualified and NRCPSD registered Speech to Text Reporter (STTR) to you, remotely at the click of a button.

Remote services are not suitable for sensitive situations where a misunderstanding may have serious results for example, during legal, disciplinary or child protection meetings.

A Flexible service

The remote service advantage is the cost savings it affords Deaf clients who want to pay an hourly rate rather than a daily or half daily rate. It is more cost-effective to pay per hour rather than the standard minimum fee for Speech to Text Reporters face to face if the session that may last just 15 minutes or less. There are no travel costs nor cancellation fees to pay.

The remote service is very flexible, with much less notice necessary than the standard STTR service with the aim to provide necessary support for shorter meetings, quickly and more effectively.
